Centering the Margins of Anthropology's History Regna Darnell, 2021-05 The series Histories of Anthropology Annual presents diverse perspectives on the discipline's history within a global context with a goal of increasing the awareness and use of historical approaches in teaching learning and conducting anthropology The series includes critical comparative analytical and narrative studies involving all aspects and subfields of anthropology Volume 14 Centering the Margins of Anthropology's History focuses on the conscious recognition of margins and suggests it is time to bring the margins to the center both in terms of a changing theoretical openness and a supporting body of scholarship if not to problematize the very dichotomy of center and margins itself The essays explore two major themes of anthropology's margins First anthropologists and historians have long sought out marginalized and forgotten ancestors arguing for their present day relevance and offering explanations for the lack of attention to their contributions to theory analysis methods and findings Second anthropologists and their historians have explored a range of genres to present their results in provocative and open ended formats This volume closes with an experimental essay that offers a dynamic multifaceted perspective that captures one of the dominant if sometimes marginalized voices in history of anthropology Steven O Murray's career developed at the institutional margins of several academic disciplines and activist discourses but his distinctive voice has been and will remain at the center of our history

Law's Regulatory Relevance? Mark Findlay, 2017-09-29 Focusing on the information economy free trade exploitation and confronting terrorist violence Mark Findlay critiques law's regulatory commodification Conventional legal regulatory modes such as theft and intellectual property are being challenged by waves of property access and use which demand the rethinking of property rights and their relationships with the law Law's Regulatory Relevance theorises how the law should reposition itself in order to help rather than hinder new pathways of market power by confronting the dominant neo liberal economic model that values property through scarcity With in depth analysis of empirical case studies the author explores how law is returning to its communal utility in strengthening social ties which will in turn restore property as social relations rather than market commodities In a world of contested narratives about property valuing law needs to ground its inherent regulatory relevance in the ordering of social change This book is an essential read for students of law and regulation wanting to explore the contemporary dissent against neo liberal market economies and the issues of communitarian governance and social resistance It will also appeal to policy makers interested in law's failing regulatory capacity particularly through criminalising attacks on conventional property rights by offering insights into why law's regulatory relevance is at a cross roads in Medicine and Religion John J. Fitzgerald,Ashley John Moyse,2019-05-09 Modern medicine has produced many wonderful technological breakthroughs that have extended the limits of the frail human body However much of the focus of this medical research has been on the physical often reducing the human being to a biological machine to be examined understood and controlled This book begins by asking whether the modern medical milieu has overly objectified the body unwittingly or not and whether current studies in bioethics are up to the task of restoring a fuller understanding of the human person In response various authors here suggest that a more theological religious approach would be helpful or perhaps even necessary Presenting specific perspectives from Judaism Christianity and Islam the book is divided into three parts Understanding the Body Respecting the Body and The Body at the End of Life A panel of expert contributors including philosophers physicians and theologians and scholars of religion answer key questions such as What is the relationship between body and soul What are our obligations toward human bodies How should medicine respond to suffering and death The resulting text is an interdisciplinary treatise on how medicine can best function in our societies Offering a new way to approach the medical humanities this book will be of keen interest to any scholars with an interest in contemporary religious perspectives on medicine and the body Action Research Ernest T. Additional resources can be found at the authors website The Routledge History of Death since 1800 Peter N. Stearns, 2020-10-13 The Routledge History of Death Since 1800 looks at how death has been treated and dealt with in modern history the history of the past 250 years in a global context through a mix of definite often quantifiable changes and a complex qualitative assessment of the subject The book is divided into three parts with the first considering major trends in death history and identifying widespread patterns of change and continuity in the material and cultural features of death since 1800 The second part turns to specifically regional experiences and the third offers more specialized chapters on key topics in the modern history of death Historical findings and debates feed directly into a current and prospective assessment of death as many societies transition into patterns of ageing that will further alter the death experience and challenge modern reactions Thus a final chapter probes this topic by way of introducing the links between historical experience and current trajectories ensuring that the book gives the reader a framework for assessing the ongoing process as well as an understanding of the past Global in focus and linking death to a variety of major developments in modern global history the volume is ideal for all those interested in the multifaceted history of how death is dealt with in different societies over time and who want access to the rich and growing historiography on the subject Chapter 1 of this book is freely available as a downloadable Open Access PDF at <http://www.taylorfrancis.com> under a Creative Commons Attribution Non Commercial No Derivatives CC BY NC ND 4.0 license

Actively Dying Cortney Hughes Rinker, 2020-12-29 This book explores the experiences of Muslims in the United States as they interact with the health care system during serious illness and end of life care It shifts actively dying from a medical phrase used to describe patients who are expected to pass away soon or who exhibit signs of impending death to a theoretical framework to analyze how end of life care particularly within a hospital shapes the ways that patients families and providers understand Islam and think of themselves as Muslim Using the dying body as the main object of analysis the volume shows that religious identities of Muslim patients loved ones and caregivers are not only created when living but also through the physical process of dying and through death Based on ethnographic and qualitative research carried out mainly in the Washington D C region this volume will be of interest to scholars in anthropology sociology public health gerontology and religious studies Angewandte Ethnologie Sabine
