Book And Defence Capabilities Small States Asia Pacific:

Asia-Pacific Security Andrew Carr, Joanne Wallis, 2016 This new textbook gathers an international roster of top security studies scholars to provide an overview of Asia Pacific's international relations and pressing contemporary security issues. It is a suitable introduction for undergraduate and masters students use in international relations and security studies courses. Merging a strong theoretical component with rich contemporary and historical empirical examples, Asia-Pacific Security examines the region's key players and challenges as well as a spectrum of proposed solutions for improving regional stability. Major topics include in-depth looks at the United States relationship with China, security concerns presented by small and microstates, the region's largest group of nations, threats posed by terrorism and insurgency, the region's accelerating arms race and the potential for an Asian war, the possible roles of multilateralism, security communities and human security as part of solutions to regional problems.

Making Sense of Cyber Capabilities for Small States Francis C. Domingo, 2022-03-28 Domingo explores the potential of cyber capabilities for small states in the Asia Pacific, the most active region for cyber conflict. He develops a systematic explanation for why Brunei, New Zealand and Singapore have developed or are developing cyber capabilities. Studies on cyber conflict and strategy have substantially increased in the past decade but most have focused on the cyber operations of powerful states. This book moves away from the prominence of powerful states and explores the potential of cyber capabilities for small states in the Asia Pacific, the most active region for cyber conflict. It develops a systematic explanation of why Brunei, New Zealand and Singapore have developed or are developing cyber capabilities despite its obscure strategic value. The book argues that the distribution of power in the region and a technology-oriented strategic culture are two necessary conditions that influence the development of cyber capabilities in small states. Following this argument, the book draws on neoclassical realism as a theoretical framework to account for the interaction between these two conditions. The book also pursues three secondary objectives. First, it aims to determine the constraints and incentives that affect the utilization of cyber capabilities as foreign policy instruments. Second, the book evaluates the functionality of these cyber capabilities for small states. Lastly, it assesses the implications of employing cyber capabilities as foreign policy tools of small states. This book will be an invaluable resource for academics and security analysts working on cyber conflict, military strategy, small states and International Relations in general.

The Digital Environment and Small States in Europe Viktorija Car, Marta Zorko, 2025-07-25 The Digital Environment and Small States in Europe delves into how the digital revolution intersects with global security dynamics and reshapes the geopolitical landscape. It sheds light on the geopolitical complexities inherent in the border regions of the European continent and proposes frameworks to better understand and engage with small state dynamics in international affairs. At the heart of this book is an examination of the transformative power of digitalization and virtualization, particularly pronounced in the context of small states. Traditionally, power was synonymous with territorial control, but in today's world, influence extends into the virtual realm. Small states despite their physical limitations can leverage this virtual extension of territory to their advantage. However, realizing and strategically utilizing these advantages are essential for capitalizing on the opportunities presented. Conversely, small states lacking digital capabilities find themselves increasingly vulnerable in the virtual sphere, facing heightened security threats and challenges. Through a series of theoretical and case study based chapters, this book offers insights into the strategies employed by small states to navigate these complexities and assert their influence on the global stage. Key themes explored include the impact of digitalization on geopolitical dynamics, the role of cybersecurity in safeguarding national interests, and the emergence of digital diplomacy as a tool for statecraft. The Digital Environment and Small States in Europe will be of great interest to scholars and students of international relations, geopolitics, and political science, as well as security, media, and communication studies. Additionally, policymakers and analysts involved in foreign policy and security affairs may find valuable insights in the book's exploration of small state strategies and vulnerabilities.

Handbook on the Politics of Small States Godfrey Baldacchino, Anders Wivel, 2020-03-28. Comprehensive and timely, this Handbook identifies the key characteristics, challenges, and opportunities involved in the politics of small states across the globe today. Acknowledging the historical legacies behind these states, the chapters unpack the costs and benefits of different political models for small states.

Military Innovation in Small States Michael Raska, 2015-11-06. This book provides a comprehensive assessment of the global diffusion of the Revolution in Military Affairs (RMA) and its impact on military innovation trajectories in small states. Although the Revolution in Military Affairs (RMA) concept has enjoyed significant academic attention, the varying paths and patterns of military innovation in divergent strategic settings have been overlooked. This book seeks to rectify this gap by addressing the broad puzzle of how the global diffusion of RMA-oriented military innovation, the process of international transmission, communication, and interaction of RMA-related military concepts, organizations, and technologies, has shaped the paths, patterns, and scope of military innovation of selected small states. In a reverse mode, how have selected small states influenced the conceptualization and transmission of the RMA theory, processes, and debate? Using Israel, Singapore, and South Korea as case studies, this book argues that RMA-oriented military innovation paths in small states indicate predominantly evolutionary trajectories, albeit with varying patterns resulting from the confluence of three sets of variables: 1) the level of strategic, organizational, and operational adaptability in responding to shifts in the geostrategic and regional security environment; 2) the ability to identify, anticipate, exploit, and sustain niche military innovation; select conceptual, organizational, and technological innovation intended to enhance the military's ability to prepare for fight and win wars; and 3) strategic culture. While the book represents relevant empirical cases for testing the validity of the RMA diffusion hypotheses from a policy-oriented perspective, this book argues that these case studies offer lessons learned in coping with the security and defence management challenges posed by military innovation in general. This book will be of much interest for students of military innovation, strategic studies, defence studies, Asian politics, Middle Eastern politics, and security studies in general.

The Strategic Options of Middle Powers in the Asia-Pacific Chien-Wen Kou, Chiung-Chiu Huang, Brian

Defence Planning for Small and Middle Powers Tim Sweijts, Saskia van Genugten, Frans Osinga, 2024-08-01. This book examines the processes, practices, and principles of defence planning in small and middle powers. Small and middle powers are recalibrating their force postures in this age of disruption. They are adapting their defence planning and military innovation processes to protect the security of their nations. The purpose of this book is to explore defence planning and military innovation in 11 contemporary case studies of small and middle powers in North America, Europe, the Middle East, Asia, and Oceania. Employing a structured, focused comparison framework, it traces patterns in the choices of small and middle powers across the following themes: 1. alliances, dependencies, and national ambitions; 2. approaches, processes, methods, and techniques; and 3. military innovation strategies and outcomes. Breaking new theoretical ground, it offers a three-pronged typology distinguishing between the strategic defence planner, the transactional defence planners, and the complacent defence planner. The book offers a rich array of insights into cases that fall across different geographies, strategic cultures, and governance systems. These insights can help guide discussions on how to structure decision-making structures, arrive at ambition levels, formulate priorities, select partners, and design defence planning and military innovation processes. This book will be of much interest to students of defence studies, security studies, public policy, and international relations, as well as to professionals in defence planning.

Small States and Hegemonic Competition in Southeast Asia Chih-Mao Tang, 2018-03-20. In the last few decades, Southeast Asia has become generally more peaceful and more prosperous with progress in economic development, regional cooperation, and integration. ASEAN, in particular, plays a leading role within and beyond the region in promoting multilateral cooperation in both security and economic matters. All these developments progress amid increasing hegemonic competition between the US and China for regional dominance in the Asia-Pacific region. According to the realist viewpoint of international politics, Southeast Asian states can do nothing but choose sides at the expense of international political autonomy in order to maintain their national interests. Tang argues, however, that in fact there exists an opportunity for Southeast Asian states to simultaneously reinforce their military security, economic development, and international political autonomy in face of the US-China hegemonic competition. Drawing on the ideas of power transition theory and recent works of capitalist peace, Tang argues that small states can exploit the competition between great powers to make economic gains and ensure security while maintaining their autonomy He outlines the necessity of cooperation among these small states and of economic liberalization for the effectiveness of this reinforcing dynamics applying policy and econometric analyses to a wide range of qualitative and quantitative data     China's Gambit Ketian Zhang,2023-12-14 Theorizes China s coercion decisions with rich empirical evidence connecting concepts in international political economy and security     Institution and Human Resource Capacity Building in ASEAN United Nations. Economic and Social Commission for Asia and the Pacific,1999 Most southeast Asian countries have until recently had a long period of rapid and reasonably equitable growth This remarkable performance was achieved largely because sound policies were implemented effectively by capable institutions with competent staff This is especially true in key policy areas such as macroeconomic management product transformations trade and investment promotion and infrastructure development Many developing economies in Asia and the Pacific including the new and potentially new members of ASEAN namely Cambodia Lao People s Democratic Republic Myanmar and Viet Nam which are facing enormous challenges resulting from domestic economic reforms and exposure to the international economy could benefit from the experiences of institution and human resource capacity building in older ASEAN countries This publication contains an overview and four country studies of Indonesia Malaysia the Philippines and Thailand     Awakening to China's Rise Hugo Meijer,2022 Awakening to China s Rise delivers the first post Cold War history of how Europe s major powers Britain France and Germany have responded to the perceived security challenge posed by China s rising assertiveness both in the Asia Pacific and in Europe
