relations but also examines labour relations practices and developing trends. It provides a survey of the subject that is both usefully brief and sufficiently detailed to answer most questions likely to arise in any pertinent legal setting. Both individual and collective labour relations are covered in ample detail with attention to such underlying and pervasive factors as employment contracts, suspension of the contracts, dismissal laws and covenant of non competition as well as international private law. The author describes all important details of the law governing hours and wages, benefits, intellectual property implications, trade union activity, employers associations, workers participation, collective bargaining, industrial disputes and much more. Building on a clear overview of labour law and labour relations, the book offers practical guidance on which sound preliminary decisions may be based. It will find a ready readership among lawyers representing parties with interests in Germany and academics and researchers will appreciate its value in the study of comparative trends in laws affecting labour and labour relations.

New technologies, digitalization, artificial intelligence and machine learning are changing the way work gets done at an unprecedented rate. Helping people adapt to a fast-changing world of work and ameliorating its deleterious impacts will be the defining challenge of our time. What are the gender implications of this changing nature of work? How vulnerable are women's jobs to risk of displacement by technology? What policies are needed to ensure that technological change supports a closing and not a widening of gender gaps? This SDN finds that women on average perform more routine tasks than men across all sectors and occupations, tasks that are most prone to automation. Given the current state of technology, we estimate that 26 million female jobs in 30 countries, 28 OECD member countries, Cyprus and Singapore are at a high risk of being displaced by technology, i.e. facing higher than 70 percent likelihood of being automated within the next two decades. Female workers face a higher risk of automation compared to male workers: 11 percent of the female workforce relative to 9 percent of the male workforce, albeit with significant heterogeneity across sectors and countries. Less well-educated and older female workers aged 40 and above as well as those in low-skill clerical service and sales positions are disproportionately exposed to automation. Extrapolating our results, we find that around 180 million female jobs are at high risk of being displaced globally. Policies are needed to endow women with required skills, close gender gaps in leadership positions, bridge the digital gender divide as ongoing digital transformation could confer greater flexibility in work benefiting women, ease transitions for older and low-skilled female workers.
