Body Paper Stage Writing And Performing Autoethnography Qualitative Inquiry Social Justice:

Body, Paper, Stage Tami Spry, 2016-06-16 Tami Spry provides a methodological introduction to the budding field of performative autoethnography. She intertwines three necessary elements comprising the process. First, one must understand the body navigating concepts of self, culture, language, class, race, gender, and physicality. The second task is to put that body on the page, assigning words for that body's sociocultural experiences. Finally, this merger of body and paper is lifted up to the stage, crafting a persona as a method of personal inquiry. These three stages are simultaneous and interdependent, and only in cultivating all three does performance autoethnography begin to take shape. Replete with examples and exercises, this is an important introductory work for autoethnographers and performance artists alike.

Body, Paper, Stage Tami Spry, 2016-06-16 Tami Spry provides a methodological introduction to the budding field of performative autoethnography, including exemplars and exercises for the novice.

Social Justice Research Methods for Doctoral Research Throne, Robin, 2021-12-10 Doctoral researchers are increasingly focusing on the social justice aspects of dissertation research problems and are often uncertain on how to incorporate societal change issues within a dissertation format. Due to the current climate, this interest in social justice is likely to continue to increase. Many aim to affect change within their discipline, workplace, or communities as they conduct dissertation research across doctoral program areas. Social Justice Research Methods for Doctoral Research presents contemporary social justice research method strategies and incorporates the aspects of social justice into research design. This major reference work illustrates how, why, and where to incorporate conventional and creative social justice research methodologies across both qualitative and quantitative approaches from various theoretical and conceptual perspectives. Covering topics such as community-based research, educational leadership, and cancel culture, this book serves as a dynamic resource for researchers, postgraduate students, researcher supervisors, librarians, methodologists, research program developers, and education administrators.

Documentary as Autoethnography: A Case Study Based on the Changing Surnames of Women Hande Çayır, 2020-10-06 In a system where my identity—that is, to say, my surname—was taken from me when I got married, an act supported by both the state and families, I simply became a wife. When I refused both that stereotype and the marital surname, I became curious about other women's decisions. I made a politically grounded documentary promoting individual power and shared it via old and new media. The seventeen-minute documentary Yok Anasın (No Surname) 2012, a form of self-narrative that places the self within a social context, had an impact on the community and created a collaborative meaning. My filmmaking experience spread the seeds, gave birth to this book, created a researcher-me in this case, and as such, theory in practice and practice in theory go hand in hand. Women in Turkey are legally required to change their surnames when they marry and divorce. If they want to continue using their ex-husband's surname after the divorce, they must seek permission from both him and the state. Has this unfair policy affected women financially? Has the forced surname change been a barrier for women's careers? What about the protection of equal legal social and economic rights Autoethnographic researchers analyse their subjectivity and life experiences in which they treat the self as other This examination of social cultural structures also calls attention to the issues of power The interdisciplinary nature of this enquiry highlights the crucial human rights debate of the link between surnames and identity and also focuses on the feminist maxim the personal is political In short the private inevitably became public in a process that bridged the autobiographical personal cultural social and political I believe that eventually through this process my story became y ours
