Chemical Element Andrew G. Ede, 2006-06-30 One of the most familiar features of any high school chemistry lab is the Periodic Table of Elements. Elegant, informative, useful to any student in the lab, the Periodic Table neatly summarizes our scientific knowledge of the chemical elements from hydrogen to uranium and beyond, atomic number, atomic weight, isotopes, and more. But how did scientists discover all of these features of the elements? How did the Periodic Table come to be? And even more basically, how did the concept of the chemical element come to dominate how scientists understand chemistry? This book shows readers the answers to these and other questions regarding the scientific understanding of matter. The Chemical Element, a volume in the Greenwood Guides to Great Ideas in Science, traces the history of this tremendously powerful concept from the ancient philosophers to the present day. The volume covers the idea of the elements held by Aristotle and the other ancient Greek philosophers, how Chinese, Arabic, and other ancient civilizations thought about the elements, Mendeleev and the creation of the Periodic Table of Elements, the predictive power of which helped in the discovery of dozens of new elements and the discovery of the artificial elements that are heavier than uranium. Jargon and mathematics is kept to a minimum, and the volume includes a timeline, a glossary, and a bibliography, making The Chemical Element an ideal resource for students researching chemistry and the history and nature of the scientific understanding of the world around us.

Redox Homeostasis Managers in Plants under Environmental Stresses Nafees A. Khan, Naser A. Anjum, Adriano Sofo, Rene Kizek, Margarete Baier, 2016-06-30 The production of cellular oxidants such as reactive oxygen species (ROS) is an inevitable consequence of redox cascades of aerobic metabolism in plants. This milieu is further aggravated by a myriad of adverse environmental conditions that plants, owing to their sessile life style, have to cope with during their life cycle. Adverse conditions prevent plants reaching their full genetic potential in terms of growth and productivity, mainly as a result of accelerated ROS generation, accrued redox imbalances, and halted cellular metabolism. In order to sustain ROS, accrued consequences, plants tend to manage a fine homeostasis between the generation and antioxidants-mediated metabolisms of ROS and its reaction products. Well known for their involvement in the regulation of several non-stress related processes, redox-related components such as proteinaceous thiol members such as thioredoxin, glutaredoxin, and peroxiredoxin proteins and key soluble redox compounds, namely ascorbate AsA and glutathione GSH are also listed as efficient managers of cellular redox homeostasis in plants. The management of the cellular redox homeostasis is also contributed by electron carriers and energy metabolism mediators such as non phosphorylated NAD and the phosphorylated NADP coenzyme forms and their redox couples DHA AsA GSSG GSH NAD NADH and NADP NADPH. Moreover intracellular concentrations of these cellular redox homeostasis managers in plant cells fluctuate with the external environments and mediate dynamic signaling in plant stress responses. This research topic aims to exemplify new information on how redox homeostasis managers are modulated by environmental cues and what potential strategies are useful for improving cellular concentrations of major redox homeostasis managers. Additionally it also aims to provide readers detailed updates on specific topics and to highlight so far unexplored aspects in the current context.
