

International GCSE (9–1) Economics Scheme of Work

The following scheme of work is for a 140 hour course. If the course is run on 120 hours then either revision is reduced to 20 or the 100 hours course content needs working through more rapidly.

The assumption is made that each lesson is 1 hour so if it refers to lesson 1 it is referring to a 1 hour lesson and 2-3 is a 2 hour lesson. The scheme of work clearly refers to the content coverage and follows the order of the specification which was written in such a way as to develop learning step by step. Explicit reference is made to what course content needs covering in each lesson. The exemplar activities and resources give advice and tips on what to do with students to cover each section.

The final two columns look at the skills that are assessed through the examination and include specific examples of questions that do this in the exam. Also indicated are places where skills can be acquired through teaching and learning within lessons.

Why transferable skills?

In recent years, higher education institutions and global employers have consistently flagged the need for students to develop a range of transferable skills to enable them to respond with confidence to the demands of undergraduate study and the world of work. To support the design of our qualifications, we have mapped them to a transferable skills framework. The framework includes cognitive, intrapersonal skills and interpersonal skills and each skill has been interpreted for each specification to ensure they are appropriate for the subject. Further information on transferable skills is available on the website. Pearson materials, including this scheme of work, will support you in identifying and developing these skills in students.

The final two columns of this scheme of work indicate which transferable skills are explicitly assessed, and where there are opportunities for them to be developed through teaching. Our intention is that teachers can use these columns to increase the opportunities for skill development through teaching.
