Plan:

Demographic and cultural characteristics of a place are endogenous factors and are influenced by exogenous factors- a place's relationship with another place. In the case of Detroit, it can clearly be argued that the demographic character of Detroit has been influenced by shifting flows of people- particularly through the great migration. The great migration refers to the phenomenon of 6 million African American people migrating from the Jim Crow south to the industrial north between 1910s -1970s. This has inevitably changed the demographic of Detroit- as evidenced by the fact that in 2018 70% of the population were African American. However it can be argued that the main reason for that demographic makeup is due to years of Oppressive legislations towards black people that have given them a very low social mobility in America and lowered their chances of escaping the deindustrialising and crumbling city. This is best demonstrated when looking at the suburbs- where a large number of white people through 'white flight' had settled. White flight refers to the outward migration of 1.25 million people white people from the inner city of Detroit to the suburbs between the years 1960s to 2022. When looking at The quality of service provision and publicly funded services such as education there is a clear disparity between the white suburbs and the black inner suburbs. Through the lack of funding and opportunities provided by oppressive legislations the inner city of Detroit and its residence of whom are mainly black they have not been able to relocate due to not having the means to whether it is economic or educational and it stems from oppressive racist legislation and disparities in funding. This means that the majority of Detroit is black and continues to be so. Additionally it is clear to see that changing flows of money through TNC action has had a

Stochastic Population Dynamics in Ecology and Conservation Russell Lande, Steinar Engen, Bernt-Erik Sæther, 2003 All populations fluctuate stochastically creating a risk of extinction that does not exist in deterministic models with fundamental consequences for both pure and applied ecology This book provides the most comprehensive introduction to stochastic population dynamics combining classical background material with a variety of modern approaches including new and previously unpublished results by the authors illustrated with examples from bird and mammal populations and insect communities Demographic and environmental stochasticity are introduced with statistical methods for estimating them from field data The long run growth rate of a population is explained and extended to include age structure with both demographic and environmental stochasticity Diffusion approximations facilitate the analysis of extinction dynamics and the duration of the final decline Methods are developed for estimating delayed density dependence from population time series using life history data Metapopulation viability and the spatial scale of population fluctuations and extinction risk are analyzed Stochastic dynamics and statistical uncertainty in population parameters are incorporated in Population Viability Analysis and strategies for sustainable harvesting Statistics of species diversity measures and species abundance distributions are described with implications for rapid assessments of biodiversity and methods are developed for partitioning species diversity into additive components Analysis of the stochastic dynamics of a tropical butterfly community in space and time indicates that most of the variance in the species abundance distribution is due to ecological heterogeneity among species so that real communities are far from neutral
