

Activity 10.1

Reading material on our website on genetic variation in gametes complements each of the following questions. Read each question first, understanding all the concepts discussed in the lecture.

1. Match each of the following changes in chromosome structure to its definition:

☒ A. Crossing

☐ B. Duplication

☐ C. Inversion

☐ D. Translocation

1a. is fusion of 2 chromosomes by their ends

1b. is presence of chromosome in duplicate

1c. is segment of one chromosome transferred to another chromosome; different, same chromosome, chromosome

1d. is fusion of 2 chromosomes (segment from one moves from one to other)

2. How many genetically different gametes can be produced from a diploid cell with 4 pairs of chromosomes (pairs)? Explain your answer.

There are 16 genetically different gametes that can be produced (using the 2ⁿ equation to find number chromosomes pairs, 4 chromosomes with 2 pairs chromosomes are 16 possible 2⁴ or 16 genetically different gametes)

3. Although you inherit a combination of half from your parents, you recognize that some traits carry the less frequent chromosomes (for example, hair color and eye color). Why may some traits be inherited together?

These traits are linked together and travel on the same chromosome. Therefore, these are not passed separately or rarely, and a recombination of genes only occurs with recombination chromosomes from both will be found with some frequency in the gametes produced. Recombination will be linked together.

4. Describe the alignment of chromosomes during prophase I, write equations.

During prophase I homologous chromosomes and homologous chromosomes align together, called bivalents. This is a bivalent because it shows the pairing between sister and brother for the bivalent genetic variation.

5. How does recombination lead to chromosomes with new combinations? Describe two types of genetic variation that can result from recombination.
