

Learning to Understand in Interethnic Communication

Peter Broeder
Tilburg University

This is a cross-linguistic and longitudinal study of language acquisition in adult migrant workers who acquire a new language without any formal instruction. These learners are in the seemingly paradoxical situation of learning to communicate in order to learn. The aim is to investigate the ways in which adult second language learners use interactions with target language speakers to learn to understand. Evidence of non-understanding - the ways it is marked and the manner of its resolution - is used to shed light on 1) the way in which the interlocutors achieve a joint resolution of understanding problems and 2) the effect on the process of acquiring the second language. The findings can be usefully applied both in language learning classrooms and in training and support for those people who are routinely involved in inter-ethnic communications.

COMMUNICATING TO LEARN A NEW LANGUAGE

The relatively young but fast growing tradition of research on second language acquisition in adults exhibits three remarkable biases:

- (1) a rather heavy Anglo-Saxon diet in which English is most commonly the source or target language (cf. Ellis, 1985: 74);
- (2) an almost exclusive focus on studies with a cross-sectional design (cf. Klein & Perdue, 1988: 5);
- (3) most commonly the subjects who provide data are students with relatively high schooling and with formal second language instruction in the context of the classroom (cf. Bremer, Broeder, Roberts, Simonot & Vasseur, 1993: 158).

Zogry, 2010-07-22 Anetso a centuries old Cherokee ball game still played today is a vigorous sometimes violent activity that rewards speed strength and agility At the same time it is the focus of several linked ritual activities Is it a sport Is it a religious ritual Could it possibly be both Why has it lasted so long surviving through centuries of upheaval and change

Based on his work in the field and in the archives Michael J Zogry argues that members of the Eastern Band of Cherokee Nation continue to perform selected aspects of their cultural identity by engaging in anetso itself the hub of an extended ceremonial complex or cycle A precursor to lacrosse anetso appears in all manner of Cherokee cultural narratives and has figured prominently in the written accounts of non Cherokee observers for almost three hundred years The anetso ceremonial complex incorporates a variety of activities which taken together complicate standard scholarly distinctions such as game versus ritual public display versus private performance and tradition versus innovation Zogry s examination provides a striking opportunity for rethinking the understanding of ritual and performance as well as their relationship to cultural identity It also offers a sharp reappraisal of scholarly discourse on the Cherokee religious system with particular focus on the Eastern Band of Cherokee Nation

Territory of Information Akio Kamio, 1997-01-01 Most higher animals are said to be territorial as a huge amount of work in ethology has made it clear Human beings are no exceptions They tend to occupy a certain space around them where they claim their own presence and exclude others quite naturally If territory is so prevalent among higher animals including humans then isn t it possible to observe its manifestations in aspects of human language Territory of Information starts from this fundamental question and attempts to demonstrate the key function of the concept of territory in the informational structure and syntax of natural language It offers an analysis of English Japanese and Chinese in terms of territory and shows its fundamental importance in the interface of information and syntax in these languages Moreover it argues that the concept of territory plays a major role in the evidentiality of a number of languages and in the linguistic structure of politeness It also makes much reference to discourse and conversational analysis Thus this is a book which might interest readers concerned with pragmatics in general the relationship between informational structure and syntax evidentiality politeness discourse analysis and conversational analysis Anthropological Contributions to Conflict Resolution Alvin William Wolfe, Honggang Yang, 1996 Anthropological Contributions to Conflict Resolution consists of ten essays that make vividly apparent the variety of ways that anthropological approaches and perspectives can be of practical worth in the resolution of conflicts The essays represent various subdisciplines in anthropology including legal and political anthropology economic anthropology cross cultural studies interpretive approaches and social network approaches Conflicts and potential conflicts at many levels are the subjects of the essays One contributor uses an ethnographic account of Sikh separatists in Punjab India to explore fighting resulting from the intertwining of religion and politics Another essay discusses the role that anthropology played in conceptualizing the legal reforms on an island in the remote western Pacific in relation to the recent emergence of alternative dispute resolution Conflicts over the commons in an American suburb are examined as are harmony ideology and adversarial ideology as they are used for both freedom and control at a manufacturing plant The introductory essay includes a discussion of network models in regard to conflict resolution and the epilogue cites an agenda for applied research in the area Anthropology and Food Policy Della E.
