Achieving a Strategic Sales Focus Kenneth Le Meunier-FitzHugh, Tony Douglas, 2016

The main aim of this book is to consider how the sales function informs business strategy. Although there are a number of books available that address how to manage the sales team tactically, this text addresses how sales can help organizations to become more customer oriented. Many organizations are facing escalating costs and a growth in customer power which makes it necessary to allocate resources more strategically. The sales function can provide critical customer and market knowledge to help inform both innovation and marketing. Sales are responsible for building customer knowledge, networking both internally and externally to help create additional customer value as well as the more traditional role of managing customer relationships and selling. The text considers how sales organizations are responding to increasing competition, more demanding customers and a more complex selling environment. We identify many of the challenges facing organisations today and offers discussions of some of the possible solutions. This book considers the changing nature of sales and how activities can be aligned within the organization as well as marketing, sensing, creating customer focus and the role of sales leadership. The text will include illustrations, short case studies provided by a range of successful organizations operating in a number of industries. Sales and senior management play an important role in ensuring that the sales teams activities are aligned to business strategy and in creating an environment to allow salespeople to be more successful in developing new business opportunities and building long term profitable business relationships. One of the objectives of this book is to consider how conventional thinking has changed in the last five years and integrate it with examples from sales practice to provide a more complete picture of the role of sales within the modern organization.

Humanitarian Intervention and Conflict Resolution in West Africa John M. Kabia, 2016-05-13

The end of the Cold War has been characterized by a wave of violent civil wars that have produced unprecedented humanitarian catastrophe and suffering. Although mostly intra state, these conflicts have spread across borders and threatened international peace and security. One of the worst affected regions is West Africa which has been home to some of Africa's most brutal and intractable conflicts for more than a decade. This volume locates the peacekeeping operations of the Economic Community of West African States (ECOWAS) within an expanded post Cold War conceptualization of humanitarian intervention. It examines the organization's capacity to protect civilians at risk in civil conflicts and to facilitate the processes of peacemaking and post war peace building. Taking the empirical case of ECOWAS, the book looks at the challenges posed by complex political emergencies, CPEs to humanitarian intervention and traces the evolution of ECOWAS from an economic integration project to a security organization, examining the challenges inherent in such a transition.

Israel and the Creation of a Palestinian State J. H. H. Weiler, 2024-10-31 To many outside observers of the Israeli Palestinian conflict there would appear to be one eminently sensible solution in exchange for recognition and adequate security guarantees Israel should return the West Bank and the Gaza strip subject to minor boundary modifications to the Palestinians led by a moderate PLO The Palestinians would then exercise their right to self determination and establish an independent state with or without a link to Jordan And yet this solution has found favor neither with successive Israeli governments nor with the PLO First published in 1985 Israel and the Creation of a Palestinian State now with a new preface by the author analyses the reasons for the rejection of this solution by the protagonists It then sets up a vision of a possible solution which by taking account of the subjective fears and aspirations of the parties may be regarded as more feasible The author's vision draws inspiration from the experience of reconstructing a new transnational order in Europe after the ravages of the Second World War The underlying theme focuses on the limitations of the purely national context as a framework for resolving the current political problems of the Israeli Palestinian dilemma
