Some online services provide ready-to-use online modules, some do that but for a fee, and some, most, don't. I do not know enough to make a recommendation, but I will tell you my initial reaction. These are not examples of great educational materials. They do include introductions, and some have links to other resources. If you search, I do not see any examples that go that far. The only exception I can find is <http://www.chemeddl.org>, which is excellent. I am not sure, but I think it is possible that the quality of the materials is related to the quality of the course.
