Japanese Sentence Processing Reiko Mazuka,Noriko Nagai,2013-05-13 This volume is a direct result of the International Symposium on Japanese Sentence Processing held at Duke University The symposium provided the first opportunity for researchers in three disciplinary areas from both Japan and the United States to participate in a conference where they could discuss issues concerning Japanese syntactic processing. The goals of the symposium were three fold to illuminate the mechanisms of Japanese sentence processing from the viewpoints of linguistics, psycholinguistics and computer science to synthesize findings about the mechanisms of Japanese sentence processing by researchers in these three fields in Japan and the United States to lay foundations for future interdisciplinary research in Japanese sentence processing as well as international collaborations between researchers in Japan and the United States. The chapters in this volume have been written from the points of view of three different disciplines with various immediate objectives from building usable speech understanding systems to investigating the nature of competence grammars for natural languages. All of the papers share the long term goal of understanding the nature of human language processing mechanisms. The book is concerned with two central issues: the universality of language processing mechanisms and the nature of the relation between the components of linguistic knowledge and language processing. This volume demonstrates that interdisciplinary research can be fruitful and provides groundwork for further research in Japanese sentence processing.

The difficulties of English grammar and analysis simplified; with a brief history of the language W.J. Dickinson, 1891 The Literary World, 1899 Single Sourcing Kurt Ament, 2002-10-28. Single sourcing is more than mechanical document conversion. It is an information development strategy. Although it is often confused with the process of converting paper based documents into online formats, single sourcing is a writing strategy that enables technical writers to develop centralized information modules, then map them to distinct audiences and media. For technical writers, single sourcing means modular writing and information mapping. Rather than developing information for a given format such as a user guide or online help, technical writers develop information modules at the element, section, paragraph and sentence level. They then map these information modules to preselected audiences and media. This guide explains in plain language and by example how to develop single source documents. It shows technical writers how to develop standalone information modules, then map these modules to a variety of audiences and formats using proven information mapping techniques. In essence, the guide provides a flexible framework for modular technical writing that can be applied to any audience in any medium
