Behind The Postmodern Facade Behind The Postmodern Facade:

Behind the Postmodern Facade Magali Sarfatti Larson, 2018-08-14 Magali Larson's comprehensive study explores how architecture happens and what has become of the profession in the postmodern era. Drawing from extensive interviews with pivotal architects from Philip Johnson who was among the first to introduce European modernism to America to Peter Eisenman identified with a new deconstructionist style she analyzes the complex tensions that exist between economic interest, professional status, and architectural product. She investigates the symbolic awards and recognition accorded by prestigious journals and panels exposing the inner workings of a profession in a precarious social position. Larson captures the struggles around status, place, and power as architects seek to redefine their very purpose in contemporary America. The author's novel approach in synthesizing sociological research and theory proposes nothing less than a new cultural history of architecture. This is a ground-breaking contribution to the study of culture and the sociology of knowledge as well as to architectural and urban history. This title is part of UC Press's Voices Revived program which commemorates University of California Press's mission to seek out and cultivate the brightest minds and give them voice, reach, and impact. Drawing on a backlist dating to 1893, Voices Revived makes high-quality peer-reviewed scholarship accessible once again using print-on-demand technology. This title was originally published in 1993 with a paperback edition in 1995. Behind the Gerbrandt, 2002 From Autos to Architecture David Gartman, 2012-04-17 One of the most interesting questions in architectural history is why modern architecture emerged from the war-ravaged regions of central Europe and not the United States whose techniques of mass production and mechanical products so inspired the first generation of modern architects.

like Le Corbusier Mies van der Rohe and Walter Gropius In From Autos to Architecture sociologist David Gartman offers a critical social history that shows how Fordist mass production and industrial architecture in America influenced European designers to an extent previously not understood Drawing on Marxist economics the Frankfurt School and French sociologist Pierre Bourdieu From Autos to Architecture deftly illustrates the different class structures and struggles of America and Europe Examining architecture in the context of social conflicts From Autos to Architecture offers a critical alternative to standard architectural histories focused on aesthetics alone

The Culture of Building Howard Davis, 2000-01-06 All buildings are ultimately the products of building cultures complex systems of people relationships rules and habits in which design and building are anchored In this book of thirteen chapter essays Davis uses historical contemporary and cross cultural examples to describe the structure of such cultures and how they are reflected in the form of buildings and cities His aim is to show that special insights about the improvement of the contemporary built world come from looking at the building culture as a whole not merely the individual acts of architects and city planners The book is illustrated with over 260 historic and contemporary photographs drawings and prints

Resisting Postmodern Architecture Stylianos Giamarellos, 2022-01-10 Since its first appearance in 1981 critical regionalism has enjoyed a celebrated worldwide reception The 1990s increased its pertinence as an architectural theory that defends the cultural identity of a place resisting the homogenising onslaught of globalisation Today its main principles such as acknowledging the climate history materials culture and topography of a specific place are integrated in architects education across the globe But at the same time the richer cross cultural history of critical regionalism has been reduced to schematic juxtapositions of the global with the local Retrieving both the globalising branches and the overlooked cross cultural roots of critical regionalism Resisting Postmodern Architecture resituates critical regionalism within the wider framework of debates around postmodern architecture the diverse contexts from which it emerged and the cultural media complex that conditioned its reception In so doing it explores the intersection of three areas of growing historical and theoretical interest postmodernism critical regionalism and globalisation Based on more than 50 interviews and previously unpublished archival material from six countries the book transgresses existing barriers to integrate sources in other languages into anglophone architectural scholarship In so doing it shows how the periphery was not just a passive recipient but also an active generator of architectural theory and practice Stylianos Giamarellos challenges long held central notions of supposedly international discourses of the recent past and outlines critical regionalism as an unfinished project apposite for the 21st century on the fronts of architectural theory history and historiography

Building the New Urbanism Aaron Passell, 2013 The New Urbanism is perhaps the most influential movement that has emerged in suburban design planning and development in recent decades It proposes to reform conventional suburban development by building community Building the New Urbanism asks why new urbanism now to provide the first in depth sociological investigation of the emergence of this phenomenon This volume situates the growth of New Urbanism in the history of urban and suburban policy and development The book builds an account of the movement's founding and development linking its progress to the making of new places The volume also investigates how the movement capitalized upon dynamics within architecture planning and the homebuying public to recruit support from among those groups The book establishes a framework for analyzing the opportunities and constraints that confront any effort to change the way we produce the built environment Moreover it reveals how elaborately social the production of the built environment is and how specific the material solutions to social conditions must be to resolve this process Building the New Urbanism is an accessible volume that encapsulates and engages the dominant history of American suburbia It draws on interviews with key figures brings the work of prominent theorists of culture and science into the investigation and broadens the focus of urban studies to the metropolitan region It will be of particular interest to scholars and students of urban and suburban development sociology geography and planning

The Architect Spiro Kostof, 2000 The Architect traces the role of the profession across the centuries and in different cultures showing the architect both as designer and as mediator between the client and the builder

Occupying Architecture Jonathan Hill, 2005-07-28 Occupying Architecture focuses on the importance of the user of architecture It emphasises the cross currents between design theory and use and the need for a wider cross cultural approach to architecture Beginning with the architect the book proceeds to explore models for architectural practice that actively engage the issue of use and concludes with examination of the user The authors draw on illustrations and examples from London Las Vegas Barcelona and Bruges to discuss how and why architecture ignores the user The apparent contradictions between the producer and the product of architecture are highlighted before the activities of the architect and the actions of the user are explored This book illustrates that architecture is not just a building it is the relation between an object and its occupant

Ethics and the Practice of Architecture Barry Wasserman, Patrick J. Sullivan, Gregory Palermo, 2000-03-07 From theory to practice a unique well rounded guide to ethics for today's architect How does an architect assist a community in evaluating alternative designs Resolve a dispute with a contractor Take into account a project's impact on the natural environment When it comes to questions like these making decisions about what ought to be done or what is the best or right solution requires more than sound technical knowledge and strong design talent It demands a solid understanding of the ethical issues that lie at the heart of architectural practice Ethics and the Practice of Architecture offers a complete broad based introduction to this crucial subject First it examines basic ethical theories and their application to architecture and discusses different ways of identifying ethical content in architecture Bridging the gap between theory and practice the second part of the book surveys different professional settings and building project processes that frequently hold ethical concerns and charts the ethical mandates that arise from them In the final section of the book thirty case studies explore a wide range of ethical dilemmas encountered in architectural practice with useful guidance on how to work through them effectively Arranged by topics that span the key phases of a project from pre design through post occupancy evaluation these case studies allow a detailed look at ethical concerns in real life situations where multiple issues are often at stake. Providing a practical framework for the exploration of ethical issues in architecture today, Ethics and the Practice of Architecture is an excellent resource for present and future architects in all areas of the field. Co-Designers Yanni Loukissas, 2012-06-14. Designers employ a variety of tools and techniques for speculating about buildings before they are built. In their simplest form, these are personal thought experiments. However, embracing advanced computer simulations means engaging a network of specialized people and powerful machines. In this book, Yanni Alexander Loukissas demonstrates that new tools have profound implications for the social distribution of design work: computer simulations are technologies for collective imagination. Organized around the accounts of professional designers engaged in a high-stakes competition to redefine their work for the technological moment, this book explores the emerging cultures of computer simulation in architecture. Not only architects but acousticians, fire safety engineers, and sustainability experts see themselves as co-designers in architecture, engaging new technologies for simulation in an evolving search for the roles and relationships that can bring them both professional acceptance and greater control over design. By illustrating how practices of simulation inform the social relationships and professional distinctions that define contemporary architecture, the book examines the cultural transformations taking place in design practice today. Framing Places Kim Dovey, 2014-04-23. Framing Places is an account of the nexus between place and power, investigating how the built forms of architecture and urban design act as mediators of social practices of power. Explored through a range of theories and case studies, this examination shows how lives are framed within the clusters of rooms, buildings, streets, and cities. These silent framings of everyday life also mediate practices of coercion, seduction, and authorization as architects and urban designers engage with the articulation of dreams, imagining and constructing a better future in someone's interest. This second edition has been thoroughly revised and updated to include a look at the recent Grollo Tower development in Melbourne and a critique on Euralille, a new quarter development in Northern France. The book draws from a broad range of methodology, including analysis of spatial structure, discourse analysis, phenomenology. These approaches are woven together through a series of narratives on specific cities: Berlin, Beijing, and Bangkok, and global building types including the corporate tower, shopping mall, domestic house, and enclave. Critical Moves Randy Martin, 1998. A theoretical examination of the influence of political and social movements on the art of dance. Concrete and Clay Matthew Gandy, 2003-08-29. An interdisciplinary account of the environmental history and changing landscape of New York City. In this innovative account of the urbanization of nature in New York City, Matthew Gandy explores how the raw materials of nature have been reworked to produce a metropolitan nature distinct from the forms of nature experienced by early settlers. The book traces five broad developments: the expansion and redefinition of public space; the construction of landscaped highways; the creation of a modern water supply system; the radical environmental politics of the barrio in the late 1960s and early 1970s; and the contemporary politics of the environmental justice movement Drawing on political economy environmental studies social theory cultural theory and architecture Gandy shows how New York s environmental history is bound up not only with the upstate landscapes that stretch beyond the city s political boundaries but also with more distant places that reflect the nation s colonial and imperial legacies Using the shifting meaning of nature under urbanization as a framework he looks at how modern nature has been produced through interrelated transformations ranging from new water technologies to changing fashions in landscape design Throughout he considers the economic and ideological forces that underlie phenomena as diverse as the location of parks and the social stigma of dirty neighborhoods

Simulation and Its Discontents Sherry Turkle, 2022-11-01 How the simulation and visualization technologies so pervasive in science engineering and design have changed our way of seeing the world Over the past twenty years the technologies of simulation and visualization have changed our ways of looking at the world In Simulation and Its Discontents Sherry Turkle examines the now dominant medium of our working lives and finds that simulation has become its own sensibility We hear it in Turkle s description of architecture students who no longer design with a pencil of science and engineering students who admit that computer models seem more real than experiments in physical laboratories Echoing architect Louis Kahn s famous question What does a brick want Turkle asks What does simulation want Simulations want even demand immersion and the benefits are clear Architects create buildings unimaginable before virtual design scientists determine the structure of molecules by manipulating them in virtual space physicians practice anatomy on digitized humans But immersed in simulation we are vulnerable There are losses as well as gains Older scientists describe a younger generation as drunk with code Young scientists engineers and designers full citizens of the virtual scramble to capture their mentors tacit knowledge of buildings and bodies From both sides of a generational divide there is anxiety that in simulation something important is slipping away Turkle s examination of simulation over the past twenty years is followed by four in depth investigations of contemporary simulation culture space exploration oceanography architecture and biology

The Orthodox Icon and Postmodern Art C.A.

Tsakiridou, 2024-08-29 This study examines the theories of postmodern visuality and representation and identifies concepts that resonate with Orthodox theology and iconography C A Tsakiridou frees the Orthodox icon from iconological precepts that limit its aesthetic and expressive range The book s key argument is that poststructuralist thought is not alien to Orthodox theology and iconography Dissonance liminality and ambiguity are essential for conveying the paradoxes of Christian faith and recognizing the hagiopneumatic vitality and openness of the Orthodox tradition Perichoresis or coinherence a concept in patristic theology that defines the relationship between the three persons of the Holy Trinity and the two natures of Christ acquires a feminine dimension in the person of the Theotokos Like the ascetical concept of nepsis it has aesthetic implications Intermedial qualities present in iconography photography and cinema help explain how icons become hosts to transcendent realities and how their experience in Orthodox liturgy and devotion has anticipated and resolved the postmodern disorientation of visuality and representation The book will be of interest to scholars working in art history postmodernism philosophy theology religion and gender studies The Oxford History of Classical Reception in English Literature: The Oxford History of Classical Reception in English Literature David Hopkins, Charles Martindale, Norman Vance, Rita Copeland, Patrick Cheney, Philip R. Hardie, Jennifer Wallace, 2012-09-27 The present volume 3 is the first to appear of the five that will comprise The Oxford History of Classical Reception in English Literature henceforth OHCREL Each volume of OHCREL will have its own editor or team of editors Preface
