Belchertown Images Of America:

The Girls and Boys of Belchertown Robert N. Hornick,2012 During much of the twentieth century people labeled feeble minded mentally deficient and mentally retarded were often confined in large publicly funded residential institutions located on the edges of small towns and villages some distance from major population centers At the peak of their development in the late 1960s these institutions frequently called schools or homes housed 190 000 men women and children in the United States The Girls and Boys of Belchertown offers the first detailed history of an American public institution for intellectually disabled persons Robert Hornick recounts the story of the Belchertown State School in Belchertown Massachusetts from its beginnings in the 1920s to its closure in the 1990s following a scandalous expos and unprecedented court case that put the institution under direct supervision of a federal judge He draws on personal interviews private letters and other unpublished sources as well as local newspapers long out of print materials and government reports to re create what it was like to live and work at the school More broadly he gauges the impact of changing social attitudes toward intellectual disability and examines the relationship that developed over time between the school and the town where it was located What emerges is a candid and complex portrait of the Belchertown State School that neither vilifies those in charge nor excuses the injustices perpetrated on its residents but makes clear that despite the court ordered reforms of its final decades the institution needed to be closed Belchertown Doris M.
