Ku Bridging September Intake:

Downstream Effects of Culvert and Bridge Replacement Bruce M. McEnroe, 2006 This report presents a framework for evaluation of likely impacts on downstream flooding and channel erosion Two methods for predicting changes in flood peaks are presented and demonstrated in examples The first method which requires flood hydrograph simulation and reservoir routing is applicable to all cases The second method which does not require hydrograph simulation or routing is applicable to culverts that operate under inlet control with no roadway overtopping The effect of detention storage on downstream sediment transport is investigated computationally Australasian Weekly Manufacturer ,1960 Engineering

Fire and Water ,1897 Twelfth International Diatom Symposium Herman van Dam,2013-06-29 The Twelfth International Diatom Symposium stressed how diatoms can be used to assess the human impact on natural waters without neglecting other important fields of research As the frustules of many diatom species are relatively resistant to dissolution they are preserved in freshwater and marine sediments and provide a record of past environments on earth In past decades they have been successfully used to reconstruct changes in water bodies evoked by changes in salinity acidification and eutrophication In the last few years diatom inferred predictions of environmental variables have become much more quantitative In the most recent research reports the strong separation between palaeolimnological and neolimnological diatom research is fading as palaeolimnologists are increasingly using modern calibration sets to infer past states of the environment This quantitative approach is also very suitable for prediction of future changes in the biota of surface waters Also ecological changes due to climatic modification have been investigated more thoroughly recently A very important new research topic is the occurrence of toxic diatoms particularly along the coasts of North America These proceedings are intended to be a balanced view of such modern developments in diatom research They should also be of interest to non specialists in diatoms who can use the results of diatom research as a tool in a more general taxonomic ecological and geological context Commercial Fisheries Review ,1961 Merchant Vessels of the United States ,1978
