me. "You will give this to Michael Clark upon his return to school on Monday. I don't expect to see you in here breaking safety rules again. I can enforce a fine offense on a new worker like Michael. He wouldn't know the rules, but you should have known better. It is beneath the dignity of Sunshine Builders. If anything like this happens again, I'm afraid you'll be removed from the organization."

My chance to duck the dumb club is here, but not wrong, leaving isn't the same thing as being kicked out. "Yes, boss. It won't happen again."

She gathers her things and flips off the lights. "Have a pleasant evening, Mami."

I walk across campus toward the drop-off circle. She will think my decision is another badge of shame. I tell you when I said I didn't want to be in the spotlight, it was because I'm always a wreck when I do anything strange in front of people. It makes my ear green too. She said, "Mami, how well it looks to your teacher that you don't even want to try?"

We hit her car dead-end, though, instead, as Papi was, looking especially stupid in the long. When I open doors, it speaks so loud that Mrs. McDowell turns over the sound from across the parking lot. I've never been grateful for the fact that nobody else is still around.

"Where's Mami?" I ask.

staff meeting at the rehab center. "I'm a little late."

I don't ask who's watching the clock. I'm supposed to be me, of course. At least I'm not struggling, or else Roli is helping.

Papi is chewing on a toothpick. His beard is grubby at this hour, and he's sweaty. I can tell he's tired, and he's wearing his lucky work face. I think of last year when I asked Papi what he liked about being a painter.

It was Career Day at school. Some parents came in to talk, but if yours couldn't make it, you had to ask your parents about your work and report back. Just my luck, that day somebody had stiffed him $250 for painting a dent in a garage door while he was on a job. The guy said Papi had done it when he parked the van, but Papi knew it was already there when he arrived. Papi tries never to argue with his customers, but it's always easy. I don't think he liked very much about being a painter that day.

He gives me a solemn look as I buckle in, and then he drives extra slow — even slower than Roli. It's like we're in the homecoming parade.

"Why are we going so slow?" I say.

"Are you in a rush?" He makes a hand signal for the turn, which he takes inch by inch, Roli-style.

huckster's flair believed that life belonged in tidy static categories. Georges Louis de Buffon, an aristocratic polymath and keeper of France's royal garden, viewed life as a dynamic swirl of complexities. Each began his task believing it to be difficult but not impossible. How could the planet possibly hold more than a few thousand species or as many could fit on Noah's Ark? Both fell far short of their goal but in the process they articulated starkly divergent views on nature, the future of the Earth, and humanity itself. Linnaeus gave the world such concepts as mammal, primate, and Homo sapiens, but he also denied that species change, and he promulgated racist pseudoscience. Buffon formulated early prototypes of evolution and genetics, warned of global climate change, and argued passionately against prejudice. The clash of their conflicting worldviews continued well after their deaths as their successors contended for dominance in the emerging science that came to be called biology.

In Every Living Thing, Jason Roberts weaves a sweeping unforgettable narrative, exploring the intertwined lives and legacies of Linnaeus and Buffon, as well as the groundbreaking, often fatal adventures of their acolytes, to trace an arc of insight and discovery that extends across three centuries into the present day.

Medieval and Renaissance Drama in England S. P. Cerasano, 2011 Canadiana, 1990 Immersed in Great Affairs Gerald L. Fetner, 2012-02-01

Immersed in Great Affairs is the first book-length biography of noted historian and journalist Allan Nevins. In a career that spanned nearly three quarters of the twentieth century, Nevins won two Pulitzer Prizes, helped draft John F. Kennedy's acceptance speech at the 1960 Democratic National Convention, composed the monumental eight-volume history of the American Civil War, Ordeal of the Union, and associated with, among others, Adlai Stevenson, Walter Lippmann, Arthur Schlesinger Sr., Charles Scribner, Abraham Flexner, and John D. Rockefeller Jr. This book traces his beginnings as a journalist in the early 1900s with the New York Evening Post and the New York World, through his years as a contributor to the New York Times Magazine. Nevins not only influenced thoughtful general readers through his articles, editorials, and reviews but also made a lasting impression on the writing of American history and nurtured a whole generation of young scholars, as DeWitt Clinton, Professor of History at Columbia University. A narrative historian in an age of growing reliance on social science concepts and theories, Nevins remained committed to telling a story and to using history to teach moral lessons.
