African Antelope Animals World 2:

African Antelope Database 1998 Rod East, 1999 Although most antelope species still exist in large numbers in sub Saharan Africa some in hundreds of thousands up to three quarters of the species are in decline Threats to their survival arise from the rapid growth of human and livestock populations with consequent degradation and destruction of natural habitats and excessive offtake by meat hunters In addition some parts of Africa are now almost completely devoid of large wild animals because of uncontrolled slaughter during recent civil wars This report presents the information currently held by the IUCN SSC Antelope Specialist Group on the conservation status of each antelope species and selected subspecies in sub Saharan Africa Key areas have been identified for the conservation of representative antelope communities While external donors make the greatest contributions to the conservation of antelopes greater recognition of wildlife conservation in national and regional development plans is often a critically important requirement Mason's World Encyclopedia of
