If it is indeed impossible to think beyond capitalism then capital has become reality If global capitalism organizes reality through the stories it weaves capital is as strong as its fictions If capital is reality and capital is fiction then reality as such is fiction as well It is by reading this fiction for both patterns and inconsistencies that contemporary individuals can challenge global capital and unveil its hypocrisies and it is by fighting fiction with fiction i.e. projecting new realities such as those in the post millennial novels by William Gibson Douglas Coupland and Dave Eggers that people can imagine the world anew

Theorising Literary Islands is a literary and cultural study of both how and why the trope of the island functions within contemporary popular Robinsonade narratives It traces the development of Western isomania or our obsession with islands from its origins in Daniel Defoe's Robinson Crusoe right up to contemporary Robinsonade texts focusing predominantly on American and European representations of fictionalized Pacific Island topographies in contemporary literature film television and other media Theorising Literary Islands argues that the ubiquity of island landscapes within the popular imagination belies certain ideological and cultural anxieties and posits that the emergence of a Western popular culture tradition can largely be traced through the development of the Robinsonade genre and through early European and American fascination with the Pacific region Talking Book Topics , 2015-05 The Self-destruction of the West Damien François, 2007
