Stanza

A stanza is a poem or portion of a poem. Each stanza is a certain number of lines. Stanzas are set apart from each other by spaces above and below. They are used for the same purpose as paragraphs in prose.

Quatrain

A quatrain is a stanza of four lines.

Couplet

A couplet is two lines of verse, usually in the same meter and joined by rhyme, that form a unit.

Rhyme

Two or more words which contain matching sounds: for example, "ball" and "fall."

Typically the sounds that match are at the end of the word.

Internal rhyme

An internal rhyme is words that rhyme in the same line ("I found the ground at last") or in the middle of lines ("The tree that held me / So free and high").

Rhyme scheme

The pattern in which words in a poem rhyme. The rhyme schemes are distinguished by letters, like ABAB, AABB, or AAAC. Each letter is associated with a word's sound. When that sound is repeated, that same letter represents the same sound.

Rhythm

The cadence, or beat, of poetry. Rhythm is created by putting stress on some syllables but not others in a line (da-DA da-DA da-DA).

Meter

A rhythmic pattern (usually in formal poems)

Alliteration

The occurrence of the same letter or sound at the beginning of adjacent or closely connected words

Allusion

A reference to something the poet is sure the audience will know

Analogy

A comparison between two things

Apostrophe

An address to a thing or person

Assonance

Two or more words in the same line or sentence that have the same or similar vowel sounds

"I tried to light the fire"

Consonance

Two or more words in the same line or sentence that start with the same consonant sound "Slithery snakes steal sleep from the students"

Imagery

The words the poet uses to create pictures in the reader's mind
