In architecture a similarly blurred line between the design process on one hand and the physical making of buildings on the other lies at the center of various debates about what it means to do architecture. The growth and development of craft theory in recent years suggest new insights into these architectural debates but situating the meaning of craft within architecture within today's technological landscape is a complex problem. Alford responds to this challenge by collecting various narratives from craft theory and other fields and discerning among them new lenses through which to view contemporary architectural practice. Episodes from this expanded view of craft in architecture go beyond predictable accounts of Ruskin and Morris to envision new models of practice, new ways of engaging other building professionals and new ways for architects to understand their own labor and the nature of how and what kinds of things they themselves craft. Architecture is changing and within the ongoing story of craft explored in this book are new and surprising ways to understand design and construct the built environment. Written for students and scholars, this book challenges and extends the legacy of craft thinking in architecture.

The 30th North Carolina Infantry in the Civil War William Thomas Venner, 2018-01-12

At the outbreak of the Civil War the men of the 30th North Carolina rushed to join the regiment proclaiming we will whip the Yankees or give them a right to a small part of our soil say 2 feet by 6 feet. Once the Tar Heels experienced combat their attitudes changed. One rifleman recorded We came to a Yankee field hospital we moved piles of arms feet hands. By 1865 the unit's survivors reflected on their experiences wondering when and if I return home will I be able to fit in. Drawing on letters, journals, memoirs and personnel records, this history follows the civilian soldiers from their mustering in to the war's final moments at Appomattox. The 30th North Carolina had the distinction of firing at Abraham Lincoln on July 12, 1864, as the president stood upon the ramparts of Ft. Stevens outside Washington D.C. and firing the last regimental volley before the surrender of the Army of Northern Virginia.
