Economics of Land Degradation and Improvement - A

Global Assessment for Sustainable Development Ephraim Nkonya, Alisher Mirzabaev, Joachim von Braun, 2015-11-11 This volume deals with land degradation which is occurring in almost all terrestrial biomes and agro ecologies in both low and high income countries and is stretching to about 30% of the total global land area About three billion people reside in these degraded lands However the impact of land degradation is especially severe on livelihoods of the poor who heavily depend on natural resources The annual global cost of land degradation due to land use and cover change LUCC and lower cropland and rangeland productivity is estimated to be about 300 billion USD Sub Saharan Africa SSA accounts for the largest share 22% of the total global cost of land degradation Only about 38% of the cost of land degradation due to LUCC which accounts for 78% of the US 300 billion loss is borne by land users and the remaining share 62% is borne by consumers of ecosystem services off the farm The results in this volume indicate that reversing land degradation trends makes both economic sense and has multiple social and environmental benefits On average one US dollar investment into restoration of degraded land returns five US dollars The findings of the country case studies call for increased investments into the rehabilitation and restoration of degraded lands including through such institutional and policy measures as strengthening community participation for sustainable land management enhancing government effectiveness and rule of law improving access to markets and rural services and securing land tenure The assessment in this volume has been conducted at a time when there is an elevated interest in private land investments and when global efforts to achieve sustainable development objectives have intensified In this regard the results of this volume can contribute significantly to the ongoing policy debate and efforts to design strategies for achieving sustainable development goals and related efforts to address land degradation and halt biodiversity loss

Has It Come to This? J.P. Sapinski, Holly Jean Buck, Andreas Malm, 2020-11-13 Geoengineering is the deliberate and large scale intervention in the Earth's climate system in an attempt to mitigate the adverse effects of global warming Now that climate emergency is upon us claims that geoengineering is inevitable are rapidly proliferating How did we get into this situation where the most extreme path now seems a plausible development Is it an accurate representation of where we are at Who is this we who is talking What options make it onto the table Which are left out Whom does geoengineering serve Why is the ensemble of projects that goes by that name so salient even though the community of researchers and advocates is remarkably small These are some of the questions that the thinkers contributing to this volume are exploring from perspectives ranging from sociology and geography to ethics and Indigenous studies The editors set out this diverse collection of voices not as a monolithic unified take on geoengineering but as a place where creative thinkers students and interested environmental and social justice advocates can explore nuanced ideas in more than 240 characters
