Philipp E. Nothaft,2018-02-09 The Gregorian calendar reform of 1582 which provided the basis for the civil and

Western ecclesiastical calendars still in use today has often been seen as a triumph of early modern scientific culture or an expression of papal ambition in the wake of the Counter Reformation. Much less attention has been paid to reform's intellectual roots in the European Middle Ages when the reckoning of time by means of calendrical cycles was a topic of central importance to learned culture as impressively documented by the survival of relevant texts and tables in thousands of manuscripts copied before 1500. For centuries prior to the Gregorian reform, astronomers, mathematicians, theologians, and even Church councils had been debating the necessity of improving or emending the existing ecclesiastical calendar, which throughout the Middle Ages kept losing touch with the astronomical phenomena at an alarming pace. Scandalous Error is the first comprehensive study of the medieval literature devoted to the calendar problem and its cultural and scientific contexts. It examines how the importance of ordering liturgical time by means of a calendar that comprised both solar and lunar components posed a technical astronomical problem to medieval society and details the often sophisticated ways in which computists and churchmen reacted to this challenge. By drawing attention to the numerous connecting paths that existed between calendars and mathematical astronomy between the Fall of Rome and the end of the fifteenth century, the volume offers substantial new insights on the place of exact science in medieval culture.

The Correspondence of Charles Darwin: Volume 23, 1875 Charles Darwin, 2015-12-03 This volume is part of the definitive edition of letters written by and to Charles Darwin, the most celebrated naturalist of the nineteenth century. Notes and appendixes put these fascinating and wide-ranging letters in context, making the letters accessible to both scholars and general readers. Darwin depended on correspondence to collect data from all over the world and to discuss his emerging ideas with scientific colleagues, many of whom he never met in person. The letters are published chronologically. Volume 23 includes letters from 1875, the year in which Darwin wrote and published Insectivorous plants, a botanical work that was a great success with the reading public and started writing Cross and self fertilisation in the vegetable kingdom. The volume contains an appendix on the 1875 anti-vivisection debates with which Darwin was closely involved, giving evidence before a Royal Commission on the subject.

It explores the interpretations of indigenous traditions regarding modern environmental problems, drawing on such concepts as lifeway and
