Misspellings are the most common category but formal errors give way to semantic based lexical errors as proficiency increases likewise the direct influence of the L1 also reduces in favour of more elaborated transfer mechanisms and L2 influence The different categories of lexical errors indicate the stage of learning This book uses a study of young EFL learners to suggest that lexical accuracy is a crucial component of writing assessment and that lexical errors are useful in predicting writing quality Third Language Learners Maria Pilar Safont Jordà, 2005-01-01 The book aims to provide a bridge between two applied linguistics subfields namely those of interlanguage pragmatics and third language acquisition It examines the production and identification of request acts formulas on the part of bilingual learners of English in the Valencian Community Spain Previous to the empirical study itself we present an overview of the theoretical background and the sociolinguistic context where the experiment was conducted International Bibliography of Book Reviews of Scholarly Literature Chiefly in the Fields of Arts and Humanities and the Social Sciences, 2001 The Determinant Phrase in the Spanish Interlanguage of Native Speakers of Swahili Maria Landa Buil, 2014-06-02 This book makes a significant contribution to the Second Language Acquisition research field as it is the only study that exists on the acquisition of the Spanish Determiner Phrase DP by speakers of a Bantu language The corpus was compiled using data from 14 interviews carried out over a 25 month period The subjects of the study were four Swahili speakers learning Spanish as a third language English is their L2 at the State University of Zanzibar Tanzania The data collected longitudinally was used to characterize the DP of the Swahili Spanish IL and observe Bantu transfer This study also represents an important contribution to the discussion on Creole formation since it provides valuable information on the role played by adult speakers in the formation of Creole languages In this book the features of the DP in the IL are compared with those of the DP found in three Spanish lexifier Creoles Palenquero Chabacano and Papiamentu Although similar work has been done comparing the interlanguage of learners of English and French with Creoles that have these languages as lexifiers no comparative studies of this type have been conducted for Spanish Moreover in the case of Palenquero this study also represents the first of its kind to examine languages in which the substrate and the L1 involved belong to the same family of Bantu languages Learning a non-native language in a naturalistic environment: Insights from behavioural and neuroimaging research Christos Pliatsikas, Vicky Chondrogianni, 2015-09-02 It is largely accepted in the relevant literature that successful learning of one or more non native languages is affected by a number of factors that are independent of the target language s per se these factors include the age of acquisition AoA of the target language s the type and amount of formal instruction the learners have received as well as the amount of language use that the learners demonstrate Recent experimental evidence suggests that one crucial factor for efficient native like performance in the non native language is the amount of naturalistic exposure or immersion that the learners receive to that language This can be broadly defined as the degree to which language learners use their non native language outside the classroom and for their day to day activities and usually presupposes that the learners live in an environment where their non native language is exclusively or mostly used Existing literature has suggested that linguistic immersion can be beneficial for lexical and semantic acquisition in a non native language as well as for non native morphological and syntactic processing More recent evidence has also suggested that naturalistic learning of a non native language can also have an impact on the patterns of brain activity underlying language processing as well as on the structure of brain regions that are involved expressed as changes in the grey matter structure This Research Topic brings together studies on the effects of learning and speaking a non native language in a naturalistic environment These include more efficient or native like processing in behavioural tasks tapping on language lexicon morphology syntax as well as changes in the brain structure and function as revealed by neuroimaging studies Books in Print Supplement ,2002
