1. The first step in the process of the scientific method is to make an observation or ask a question. For example, a scientist might observe that a plant grows better in one type of soil than another.
2. Next, the scientist forms a hypothesis, which is a prediction or an educated guess about the outcome of an experiment. For example, the scientist might hypothesize that the plant will grow taller in soil A than in soil B.
3. The third step is to design and conduct an experiment to test the hypothesis. This involves setting up a controlled experiment where the only variable that changes is the type of soil.
4. After the experiment is completed, the scientist collects data and analyzes the results. If the plant in soil A is indeed taller, the hypothesis is supported.
5. Finally, the scientist draws a conclusion based on the results. If the hypothesis is supported, the scientist might conclude that soil A is better for growing this type of plant.
