

BODY LANGUAGE

Cultures have unique forms of body language. This does not mean that everyone you meet from a certain place will use exactly the same gestures to denote the same moods. Non-verbal language is both culturally and situationally defined.

Here are some common gestures that can have radically different meanings.

Smiling in most Western cultures indicates someone is happy or pleased.

In many Asian cultures, smiles can mean that the person is embarrassed.

Most Western cultures believe it is important to maintain eye contact when conversing.

In many Asian and African cultures, it is rude to maintain eye contact, especially when speaking to someone in a senior position.

In Japan, people often close their eyes when they are listening intently, since this blocks out other stimulations.

In most other countries, closing your eyes means you've stopped listening. Or worse, are sleeping.

Italians are known for their expressive arm gestures.

Many other cultures employ less expressive movements. Germans and British often do not move their arms at all when speaking.

In many countries, it does not matter which hand you use to give something to another person.

In the Middle East and some Asian countries, the left hand has a negative connotation and so the right hand must be used.

Finger gestures don't translate well across cultures.

In most countries, this means everything is fine. In the Arab world, this is an insult.

In most Western cultures, this is seen as a friendly gesture.

In many Buddhist countries, the head is the home of the soul. So, it should not be touched.

In most cultures, this means that the person is concerned about getting someplace on time or is late.

In the Middle East, this is considered an insult and indicates that you do not see the current meeting as the best use of your time.

Most Western cultures use a handkerchief or tissue when blowing their nose to keep from spreading germs.

Asian cultures are more likely to spit or snort rather than use a soiled handkerchief that has to be kept in a pocket.
