- J.I. Case of Racine, Wisconsin introduced the Case 400 Series tractors in 1955, replacing the D-Series that had been offered since 1939.
- This new series came in several different styles, but the general purpose row-crop model was the flagship of the series.
- The Case Duo-Control hydraulic system, which this tractor has, was standard on the row-crop tractors, but was an extra cost option on all other models.
- This tractor was purchased new in 1955 by a farmer west of Edmonton where it was used for general farm duty. When he moved to the city in 1966, he installed new tires for a potential construction venture, which never materialized. The tractor stayed in his garage, unused, until he donated it to the Museum in 2012.
