Lunde, Christine Whitehead, 2016-02-16 This book provides evidence on how housing finance markets developed across Europe The objective of the text is to bring together up to date material from across Europe which will help to clarify i how national housing finance markets have dealt with the challenges of deregulation and privatisation since the 1980s ii how the financial crisis has impacted on the structure of the industry and the range of financial instruments available iii how governments and the EU have responded to increasing risks and higher indebtedness in most West European countries and the need to grow new finance markets in Eastern Europe and iv how changing housing finance markets impact on the capacity to provide adequate affordable housing into the future Museum Processes in China Chui-fun Selina

Ho, 2025-10-01 This book challenges the museum enterprise in China as a state monopoly and considers it as a new cultural agency that has emerged in the early twenty first century Following a constructive and multi-perspectival approach it discusses the roles of political and cultural economic agents museum intermediaries and museum publics in the interlinked processes of regulation cultural production and consumption and the issues of identity and representation faced by the art museums in the Greater Pearl River Delta Region It broadly traces the art museum from its origin as a tool of nationalism and adoption as a vehicle of modernization in both nationalist and early communist periods until its role in the present as it reflects the contested and alternative representations diverse publics and fissured identities of the post economic reform period of China Systems biology and ecology of microbial mat communities Martin G. Klotz, Donald A. Bryant, Jim K.

Fredrickson, William P. Inskeep, Michael Köhl, 2016-04-11 Microbial mat communities consist of dense populations of microorganisms embedded in exopolymers and/or biomineralized solid phases and are often found in mm-cm thick assemblages which can be stratified due to environmental gradients such as light oxygen or sulfide Microbial mat communities are commonly observed under extreme environmental conditions deriving energy primarily from light and or reduced chemicals to drive autotrophic fixation of carbon dioxide Microbial mat ecosystems are regarded as living analogues of primordial systems on Earth and they often form perennial structures with conspicuous stratifications of microbial populations that can be studied in situ under stable conditions for many years Consequently microbial mat communities are ideal natural laboratories and represent excellent model systems for studying microbial community structure and function microbial dynamics and interactions and discovery of new microorganisms with novel metabolic pathways potentially useful in future industrial and or medical applications Due to their relative simplicity and organization microbial mat communities are often excellent testing grounds for new technologies in microbiology including micro sensor analysis stable isotope methodology and modern genomics Integrative studies of microbial mat communities that combine modern biogeochemical and molecular biological methods with traditional microbiology macro ecological approaches and community network modeling will provide new and detailed insights regarding the systems biology of microbial mats and the complex interplay among individual populations and their physicochemical environment These processes ultimately control the biogeochemical cycling of energy and or nutrients in microbial systems Similarities in microbial community function across different types of communities from highly disparate environments may provide a deeper basis for understanding microbial community dynamics and the ecological role of specific microbial populations Approaches and concepts developed in highly constrained relatively stable natural communities may also provide insights useful for studying and understanding more complex microbial communities

Drug Development for Parasite-induced Diarrheal Diseases Anjan Debnath, James H. McKerrow, 2017-08-25 One of the top four contributors to the global burden of disease is diarrheal infections Intestinal parasites are major causes of morbidity and mortality associated with diarrheal diseases in both the developed and developing world Amebiasis is responsible for 50 million cases of invasive disease and 70 000 deaths annually in the world Giardiasis has an estimated worldwide prevalence of 280 million cases annually In developed countries Giardia lamblia infects about 2% of adults and 6 8% of children The prevalence of G lamblia infection is generally higher in developing countries ranging from 3% to 90% Furthermore giardial infections contribute substantially to the 2 5 million annual deaths from diarrheal disease In Asia Africa and Latin America about 500 000 new giardiasis cases are reported each year Cryptosporidium accounts for 20% and 9% of diarrheal episodes in children in developing and developed countries respectively Infection with Cryptosporidium can be chronic and especially debilitating in immunosuppressed individuals and malnourished children A recent study to measure disease burden based on disability adjusted life years DALYs found that cryptosporidiosis and amebiasis produce about 10 6 million DALYs This exceeds the DALYs of any helminth infection currently being targeted by the World Health Organization for preventive chemotherapy Because of its link with poverty Giardia and Cryptosporidium were included in the WHO Neglected Diseases Initiative in 2004 E histolytica G lamblia and C parvum have been listed by the National Institutes of Health NIH as category B priority biodefense pathogens due to low infectious dose and potential for dissemination through compromised food and water supplies in the United States Despite the prevalence of amebiasis giardiasis and cryptosporidiosis there are no vaccines or prophylactic drugs The first line drugs for invasive amebiasis and giardiasis chemotherapy are nitroimidazoles with the prototype metronidazole being the most common drug used worldwide Metronidazole has been shown to be both mutagenic in a microbiological system and carcinogenic to rodents and frequently causes gastrointestinal side effects In spite of the efficacy of nitroimidazole drugs treatment failures in giardiasis occur in up to 20% of cases Clinical resistance of G lamblia to metronidazole is proven and cross resistance is a concern with all commonly used anti giardial drugs Nitazoxanide the only FDA approved drug for the treatment of cryptosporidiosis is effective in the treatment of immunocompetent patients and partially effective for immunosuppressed patients Therefore it is critical to search for more effective drugs to treat amebiasis giardiasis and cryptosporidiosis This Research Topic for Frontiers in Microbiology will explore the recent progress in drug development for parasitic diarrheal diseases This includes an understanding of drug resistance mechanisms We would also welcome submissions on the drug development for other diarrheal parasites We hope that this research topic will include a comprehensive survey of various attempts by the parasitology research community to create effective drugs for these diseases

Green Asia Tania Lewis, 2016-09-13 Economic development in Asia is associated with expanding urbanism overconsumption and a steep growth in living standards At the same time rapid urbanisation changing class consciousness and a new rural urban divide in the region have led to fundamental shifts in the way ecological concerns are articulated politically and culturally Moreover these changes are often viewed through a Western moralistic lens which at the same time applauds Asia s economic growth as the welcome revival of a floundering world economy and simultaneously condemns this growth as encouraging hyperconsumerism and a rupture with more natural ways of living This book presents an analysis of a range of practices and activities from across Asia that demonstrate that people in Asia are alert to ecological concerns that they are taking action to implement new styles of green living and that Asia offers interesting alternatives to narrow Anglo American models of sustainable living Subjects explored include eco tourism in the Philippines green co operatives in Korea the importance of tradition within Asian discourses of sustainability and much more
